Alexandria, Va., March 9.—After hearing arguments in the Corporation Court today in the case of J. A. Morgan and others against the town council of Manassas, Va., Judge L. C. Barley announced he would deliver a decree in the case March 16.

The object of the suit is to restrain the defendants from issuing $5,000 bonds for the purpose of installing an electric light plant, water works, and sewerage and to prevent the sale of the bonds to Hancock Bond Company, of Chicago.

This case was removed from the Circuit Court for Prince William County and Judge Barley was named by the governor to sit in the case in place of Judge J. R. Thornton.

The defendants were represented by Thomas H. Lyon, of Prince William County, and C. E. Nicol, of this city; Bryan Gordon, of Manassas, Va., represents the complainant, and Mr. Lyon also represents the bond company.

MISS RICHARDS TALKS OF HALF-AND-HALF PLAN

In Woodward & Lothrop Auditorium

Lecturer Points to Injustice of Move to Take Away Support of Government in Spite of Large Amount of Property Owned by U. S.

In the large Woodward & Lothrop auditorium more than women were deeply interested for almost two hours yesterday morning to hear Miss Janet Richards discuss the vital issues of the day. Beginning with a resume of a most interesting and important happening of the world's work for the past week, Miss Richards proceeded to give special attention to the provisions of the Johnson-Prouty amendment to the George tax bill, and the public effect it would have upon the 50,000 small property holders of the District.

Reminding her hearers of the fact that a large proportion of the Nation's wealth is owned outright by the United States, Miss Richards pointed out the injustice of laying the tax for the entire upkeep of the Nation's Capital on its far from wealthy residents. She predicted that should these propositions be enacted into law, it would have the inevitable effect of arresting the desirable development of the Nation's Capital, and at the same time drive thousands of homemakers back into boarding houses or small apartments.

Miss Richards called attention to the series of clear and forcible articles which recently appeared in the Washington Herald, by Mr. H. B. F. Macfarland, on the history of the formation of the George tax bill. Fully three hundred copies of Mr. Macfarland's pamphlets were disposed of to the patrons present, showing the great interest felt by the audience in the question of the George tax.

Miss Richards also made an appeal to her hearers to use their influence for more liberal appropriations for the enforcement of the George tax. She reminded her hearers of the fact that the George tax is a burden on the shoulders of the poor, while the wealthy are exempt.

Miss Richards reminded her hearers of the Burdette statement in the Senate committee last week where legislators are so busy with their own committee work that they are not acquainted with questions coming before other committees. They must bring attention to their colleagues on this question, she said. As a result of this the people are off guard. These remarks were met with round applause.

Miss Richards' current topic class is recognized as one of the oldest institutions of the District of Columbia, as she has been talking to an ever-increasing clientele in Washington for something over fifteen years. There are still members of her class who were present at the first meeting in the drawing room of Mrs. Burnard before the Spanish-American war. Her class is made up of representative residents, including wives of members of the Cabinet, of the Supreme Court, of the Senate, of the House, army and navy circles. This class is looked upon as a sort of central intelligence on affairs political for the women of the District, and in addition, the class is a place where there are regular patrons among men of leisure, conspicuous among them, retired admirals and generals, and Senators.

Speaking of the general unrest of the world and cabinet crises in so many countries, Miss Richards called attention to the fact that doubtless the great cause for the unrest is the uprisings of the people, and the greater manifestations of democracy the world over. It is due to the spread of education. Most countries make education compulsory for all children. The inevitable result of independent thinking on the part of the masses of the people will be an unrest, progress, and change.

"You can no longer say to the great masses of the people, 'Look at our great philanthropists, what they do for you. They are the great benefactors of the world,' said she. "You can no longer say to the great masses of the people, 'Look at our great philanthropists, what they do for you. They are the great benefactors of the world,' said she. "You can no longer say to the great masses of the people, 'Look at our great philanthropists, what they do for you. They are the great benefactors of the world,' said she.

The members of Miss Richards' class, most of whom were present, are: Mrs. A. E. Mason, Mrs. E. E. Everhart, Mrs. M. E. Perry, Mrs. J. N. Hemphill, Mrs. M. A. Mannakee, Mrs. E. C. Y. W. C. A. WILL LAUNCH $7,000 CRUSADE TODAY

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall Will Lead Canvassers in Five Days' Campaign for Funds.

APPEAL TO WIPE OUT DEFICIT

Led by Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the Vice President, thirty women, all active workers for civic betterment, will leave the Young Women's Christian Association, at 926 F street northwest, early this morning and depart to all sections of Washington in a campaign to raise $7,000.

Men and women in all walks of life will be asked to contribute to the fund, and the campaigners will say: "We do not ask for money as charity, but we ask it because it is the duty of citizens of Washington to aid the Y. W. C. A., which is doing much for the city in caring for girls."

It is planned to raise $1,000 in five days, and it is believed the hope will be realized, as Miss Helen A. Davis, of New York, national secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who engineered the campaign in Plainfield, N. J., where $10,000 was raised in three days, has taken charge of the campaign here.

The names of 1,000 residents of Washington have been taken from a card index, and by this system no person will be asked twice for a contribution.

Mrs. William Hamilton Bailey, president of the local Y. W. C. A., said: "If each of the business houses would contribute $10 yearly we would not have to ask for aid. We pay all of our expenses except 15 per cent, and we want to wipe out that small deficit before the end of our fiscal year, on April 20."

The deficit amounts to $3,000. The remaining $2,000 of the $5,000 is desired to buy land for the girls' summer vacation home near Cherrydale, Va. The Chevy Chase Chapter of the Y. W. C. A. has pledged itself to raise the $2,000 and the Chevy Chase women will be led by Mrs. Thomas H. Robertson.

The thirty women collectors have been divided into six groups. The leaders of these groups are Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. H. B. F. Macfarland, Mrs. Thomas H. Mitchell, Miss Elizabeth F. Pierce, and Mrs. Homer Guerry.

Others who will aid in collecting include Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Charles W. Richardson, Mrs. John S. Scully, Miss Elizabeth F. Pierce, Mrs. Woodbury

Baseball Enthusiasts Meet to Plan for Conduct of Schedule for Coming Season.

The Potomac Baseball League, of the eastern section of the District, met last night at the home of Dr. William W. Watson, president of the league, in Nichols avenue, Anacostia. It is practically assured that the majority of the games this coming season will be played on Anacostia grounds. Some of the games, however, will be played on the diamond at the Government Hospital for the Insane. This is desired because there are many patients in that institution who are interested in the game, and it is for their benefit especially that the games there will be played.

LURE OF FOOTLIGHTS ENDED LOVE'S DREAM

John Arthur Ray Tells of Sudden Death of Romance with Former Miss Gertrude Bondhill.

How a woman's love for the stage shattered the romance of pretty Gertrude Bondhill, the actress, and John Arthur Ray, American consul at Sheffield, England, was told last night by a friend of the couple, following the announcement that the husband has sued for divorce.

Ray himself revealed the story when he passed through Washington last week en route to his home at Whitewright, Grayson County, Tex., where he filed suit for divorce.

"I'm going down to Texas to get the divorce," said Ray, "because it is easy in Texas, where they don't think much of actresses."

"I still care for Gertrude. I would love and cherish her as my wife if she hadn't forced the separation. I met her here in Washington while I was on leave of absence, and just before Christmas we went to her home in Ohio and were married. Then we went to Sheffield and started to settle down and be happy."

"We were happy just about two weeks. Letters and cables from her old stage friends poured in on Gertrude and she plainly showed me she was not happy. Then she came back to America and the footlights. Naturally her friends thought I was to blame. My suit for divorce will show that it was Gertrude's love for the footlights."

Ray was quoted as saying that his wife told him she had made a mistake when she thought she was tired of the stage and wanted matrimony. The actress wife said to have declared to her husband that she didn't love him as much as she had before. At this crisis the former Miss Bondhill was called an offer to return to the stage. She returned.

In private life before her marriage, Miss Bondhill was Gertrude Shafer Cavagna. She is well known in Washington where she played under Polt management. She is now appearing in "Madame Sherry" at Polt's Baltimore theater. Ray is a native of Texas and a Yale graduate. He was instructor at the Naval Academy, but entered the consular service five years ago and has been service at Mascara, Arabia and Maracaibo, Venezuela.
